

Undergraduate Computer Science Internship Program Ireland (ODCSSS)

The Online Dublin Computer Science Summer School (ODCSSS) 2008 - 2009

A Science Foundation Ireland Undergraduate Research Experience & Knowledge Site

Details

The Online Dublin Computer Science Summer School is a paid internship program designed for undergraduate students to experience and participate in ongoing world class research. For the 2008 program we have focused the collective research efforts of over 24 leading academics on projects that offer a novel undergraduate research experience yet help address day to day problems with technologies for social connectedness.

This internship program is a four-year collaborative effort between academics in Ireland based at University College Dublin (UCD) and Dublin City University (DCU) with the support from other organisations such as the Adaptive Information Cluster (AIC). The ODCSSS website contains details of all the groups, academics, alumni and available projects.

Internship Award Conditions

- Only students currently in their 2nd or 3rd year of undergraduate study in a Computer Science or related degree may apply (Students who are currently in their final year of undergraduate study or who are taking or about to undertake postgraduate study may not apply).
- Internships are awarded based purely on the merit of each student's application and references
- An internship lasts 12 weeks starting on June 3rd 2008. Note: Starting the internship early or late is not possible
- Each intern is paid a tax-free scholarship to the value of 300 per week subject to satisfactory progress
- A contribution may be made towards travel expenses for international students (up to 300 inside the EU and 800 for students from outside the EU).

Applications

- Applications are handled via the website only
- Emailed, faxed or postal application will not be accepted
- Applications close in early April this year and close on Thursday April 3rd in 2008 for the June 08 intake.
- Note, only apply if you can be in Dublin for the 12 weeks each internship lasts (starting Tuesday June 3rd 2008).
